

Thomas Martens, MD
Internal Medicine, Park Nicollet Clinic
Medical Director, International Diabetes Center

Dr. Thomas Martens is a board-certified internist at Park Nicollet Clinic in Brooklyn Center, MN, and serves as a medical director at the International Diabetes Center-HealthPartners Institute. In addition to maintaining an active internal medicine practice, he is an investigator on hybrid closed-loop insulin delivery studies, as well as studies involving the use of continuous glucose monitoring (CGM) technology and drug therapies in T2D. He is particularly interested in the translational aspects of implementing diabetes technology in a primary care setting and has presented locally and nationally on the use and interpretation of CGM data in primary care.

Dr. Martens attended medical school at the University of Wisconsin and completed an Internal Medicine residency and chief residency year at Hennepin County Medical Center in Minneapolis, MN.
